PREFACE

Academic Excellency of any Institution of higher learning is embodied in the factors that influence quality of training programmes, research and public services which are the pillars of institutional missions. Academic excellency is a key factor in ensuring that SUA becomes a centre of excellence and valued member of the global academic community and in achieving this institution has striven to ensure that excellence is embodied in the quality of its staff, students, infrastructure and other components of the teaching and learning environment. The maintenance of such excellency is thus governed by the institutional vision, missions and the corporate strategic plans. It is thus of great importance to ensure quality training, research and outreach activities for the betterment of the stakeholders this institution serves. This in turn depends on the presence of a vibrant, motivated and action-oriented academic staff body.

In recognition of the above institutional obligations and in keeping with the regulations governing the terms and conditions of service made in Part III Section 20 and Part IV of the Universities Act, 2005, and the Harmonized Scheme of Service for Academic Staff in Public Universities and Constituent Colleges of 2014; this fifth edition of the Up the Ladder explicitly describes the criteria and conditions for employment and engagement of the teaching staff at SUA; criteria for promotion of academic staff; rules and regulations governing Sabbatical Leave, the use of Tanzanians in the Diaspora, conditions for leave without pay. In cases where the provision of the Up the Ladder conflicts the requirements set by the Harmonized Scheme of Service for Academic Staff in Public or guidelines issued by the Government/higher authorities such requirements shall prevail.

APPENDIX 12: CRITERIA FOR EVALUATING SCHOLARLY ONLINE JOURNALS

(Made under Section 11)

SOKOINE UNIVERSITY OF AGRICULTURE

Considering the increased complexity in journal publishing industry, a number of aspects should be considered in deciding the quality of a particular journal. A single criterion such as journal’s impact factor or indexing by well-known online databases may be adequate in accepting a journal but in other cases more than one criterion must be considered. This is mainly because not all journals have impact factors or indexed in Web of Science and other major databases. Therefore, the following aspects should be considered either singly or in combination:

1.0 Check whether the journal is indexed in major indexing databases such as Web of Science and Scopus or major international journal rankings such as the SCImago Journal & Country Rank (SJR).

1.1 Check whether the journal is covered in major international abstracting and indexing services; most of which are subject-specific. E.g. African Index Medicus, Bioline International, CABI, Linguistics Abstracts Online.

1.2 Check whether the journal is covered by major international online journal databases and publishers such as Blackwell, Emerald, Nature Publishing Group, PubMed, SAGE, ScienceDirect, AJOL, DOAJ, HINARI, AGORA and OARE.

1.3 Check whether the journal has an impact factor. However, for some newer journals or journals not indexed by Web of Science, impact factors will not be available. Nevertheless, there are other metrics such as h-index that are provided by SCImago Journal & Country Rank.

1.4 Identify whether the editorial board has sufficient, diverse (especially for journals that claim to be international in scope or coverage) and qualified members, and who are not serving in more than one Journal.

1.5 Examine who is the publisher of the journal and check for the integrity of the publisher.

1.6 Check whether the publisher has an optional "fast-track" fee-based service for expedited peer review which appears to provide assured publication with little or no vetting.

1.7 Check whether the journal is listed under “predatory journals” or “predatory publishers”.
